

Watch the video clip from the TV series « evrybody hates Chris » and fill in the blanks with the following words speech – I can do - I'm going to – lockers – change - food – the Pledge of Allegiance – reasons – trips – eighth grade – promise – gonna – cheese - running for – Wednesday - class president (Chris Rock) Even though I didn't have a....., I did have something to say.

When I decided to run for eighth grade, I was running for a lot of different

What I never really asked myself was, "did I really want to be class president?" Well, I do.

You know, I don't know what as class president, but this is whattry to do.

I'm going to try to get youwith combinations that work. I'm tired of coming in to my locker and seeing that everything I own is gone.

I'm going to try to get you textbooks from this decade. I've got a textbook that says Dwight Eisenhower's president. Who is Dwight Eisenhower? I don't know.

And what about that lunch room? I had some Jell-O last week that was harder than the bowl. And what's with all the salami? Did someone vote for salami? Do we have any bologna? Ham? Can I get a slice of? And if we have hot dogs on Tuesday, I don't want to have hot dog casserole and Thursday and then franks and beans on Friday. it up!

And do we have to sayevery day? It's a pledge! We can say it once! What, they don't trust us or something?

And how about we get field to places where people actually want to go? I'm not going to the botanical gardens one more time. How about Coney Island? Or Times Square? Let's go see the Knicks! Let's go see the Yankees! Heck, I'll even go see Cats. But if I go to the botanical gardens one more time, I'm slap the sap out of somebody.

Now I know it's been a long time coming, but as your class president I you a change is gonna come. My name is Chris, and I'myour eighth grade class president.

It was great to hear a crowd say my name and not follow it with, "Let's get him."
