One of the most highly anticipated series continuations is undoubtedly Season 5 of Stranger Things. Next year, we can look forward to eight new episodes, and Netflix has now stoked our curiosity even more by releasing the titles for each one. If you'd rather avoid spoilers, stop reading here. For everyone else, we've listed the titles below!

The new message from the Stranger Things team:

"In the fall of 1987, one last adventure begins. Stranger Things 5 coming 2025."

- Episode 1 – The Crawl
- Episode 2 – The Vanishing Of...
- Episode 3 – The Turnbow Trap
- Episode 4 – Sorcerer
- Episode 5 – Shock Jock
- Episode 6 – Escape From Camazotz
- Episode 7 – The Bridge
- Episode 8 – The Rightside Up

HELP ! Here are some clues about the season 5 episode titles

The most delightful detail in the video is arguably the reveal that the season takes place in the fall of 1987, four years after the events of the first season.

- Some of these titles allude to earlier episodes: "The Vanishing of..." — revealed with the name fully obscured — invokes the series premiere "The Vanishing of Will Byers."
- The Season 1 finale was titled "The Upside Down," the name of the phantasmagoric alternate dimension connected to Hawkins, so it is fitting that the series finale title, "The Rightside Up," is the reverse.
- The penultimate episode title, "The Bridge," evokes curious titles like Season 2's "The Gate."
- The 5th episode title suggests that a large portion of this adventure will take place at WSQK 94.5, the radio station that we have been seeing in a ton of behind-the-scenes photos and likely heard in the background in previous seasons. For those who don't know, a shock jock is a radio personality/DJ who uses drama and (sometimes crude/controversial) humor to entertain fans.
